Mo Asumang, Germany's first Afro-German TV presenter and moderator, as well as documentary filmmaker and activist, will be visiting Trinity College on September 15-16. Mo Asumang is widely renowned for her documentary film The Aryans (2014) in which she explores the topics of racism and hatred among various rightwing, white supremacist groups in Germany and the United States. More recently, Mo Asumang has become active as a specialist in creating dialogues with people who think differently, which she has developed into a workshop model that she has given on antiracism in businesses, schools, and universities.
